

Ethics in Criminological Research Conference

Hosted by the Centre for Crime, Law and Justice, University of Lancaster Law School.

10th May 2017

Ethical issues in criminological research are an increasingly complex matter. Consideration of issues around safety, informed consent, 'guilty knowledge' and disclosure, the limits of 'participation' in participant observation, the protection of vulnerable populations and so on, leads to a complex set of interlinked concerns. The aim of this one day conference is to examine these issues more closely. Invited speakers have conducted research which brought with it specific ethical considerations and will present papers outlining how these were tackled and 'overcome'.
